London police dipping into reserve fund

'So the lights
don't go out'. $3M
usually earmarked for extraordinary
police operations, investigations

SCOTT TAYLOR
scott.taylor@metronews.ca

Push will come to shove for London police officers when they begin their next round of collective bargaining in 2015.

The police services board voted Thursday to dip into its reserve fund to the tune of $528,000 just to maintain services through 2014.

It's the first time the fund — normally earmarked for extraordinary police operations and investigations — has been used, as board chair Michael Deeb put it, "just so the lights don't go out and the doors stay open."

It currently has about $3 million in it.

The catch? Unless the city agrees to the police department's 2014 budget request, more money will have to come from reserves, officials said.

Cops say they need a 3.3

per cent increase from city hall next year, which would bring their budget to just shy of $92.9 million. The request was tweaked Thursday to be lower than the 4.2 per cent initially pitched in October.

The city has requested that all boards and commissions, including police, ask for no more than 2.3 per cent over what they saw this year.

It's possible, Chief Brad Duncan said, that as much as $1 million may be needed from the reserve fund just to get through 2014.

Budget chair Paul Paolatto was succinct in describing the situation: "It's this or a cut to services."

As board members agreed to pull from reserves, they stressed that it's a one-time option.

"It's extremely difficult for me to vote to take anything out of the reserve fund, but I don't see any other way," said city Coun. Judy Bryant, who along with Coun. Denise Brown sits on the police board.

Deeb said it's like "giving medicine to something that needs surgery."

The elephant in the room, as it was called, is personnel costs, which eat up about 97 per cent of the requested increase.

Paolatto said that has to change.

To help make that happen, police boards from across the province are uniting to form a common front when most contracts end in 2015.

"It really is all labour costs at this point," Paolatto said.
"At the end of the day we need to bring better balance to the equation."

Quoted

"It's this or a cut in services."

Budget chair Paul Paolatto, on dipping into the reserve fund for $528K just to maintain services through 2014.

About 72 per cent of police boards in Ontario, including London, have signed on to negotiate as one unit in 2015.
Paolatto expects the others to join within the next 12 months.

Meanwhile, the police may find unexpected ways to cut costs when an audit is carried out next year by PricewaterhouseCoopers.

They found $750,000 in savings at city hall departments last year and at least $70,000 in savings at the library.

Fanshawe fashion gala takes it back many decades

It's been running for eight years, but now it's jumping 90 years into the past.

The fundraising fashion gala at Fanshawe College, run by fashion merchandising students, has become a highlight of the college calendar.

This year it's all about the 1920s as the students pull out all the stops to raise money for My Sisters' Place and Goodwill Industries.

They will vamp it up with revamped clothes from Goodwill at the charity's headquarters (255 Horton St. E.) on Friday. It starts with cocktails at 7 p.m. and the fashion show is at 8:15 p.m.

The students are enthusiastic about the life-changing impact of the micro-enterprise program for homeless women run by My Sisters' Place. It sees them create jewelry and fashion accessories to sell, teaching entrepreneurial and employment skills.

Over the eight years of the fashion gala, it has raised more than $30,000 for My Sisters' Place.

Tickets for the event are available at My Sisters' Place (566 Dundas St.) or at mysistersplacelondon.ca.

London bringing in a world of students

Global. Fanshawe actively recruits in several countries and now has students with 40 different nationalities

mike.donachie@metronews.ca

London is about to give a warm welcome to international students just as a new study reveals how much they love Canada.

The Canadian Bureau for International Education says surveys in 2012 and 2013 found that 91 per cent of international students were "satisfied" or "very satisfied" with their experience in the country.

Even better, 96 per cent of them said they would "definitely" or "probably" recommend Canada as a study destination.

The folks at Fanshawe College and Western University are well-aware of the way students feel.

With thousands buzzing around the city — and both schools are trying to recruit as many as they can handle — there are easy explanations for why students are taking a liking to the Great White North.

"International students are looking for a country like Canada where there's opportunity," said Cathy Auger, Fanshawe's vice-president, student services.

At Western, Julie McMullin, the vice-provost, international, said: "One of the central strategy priorities of Western is to internationalize our campus."

"The reason that we're doing that is to promote a sense of global awareness and cross-cultural benefits in our community."

Local students will get a public display of affection during International Student Welcome Day at the London Lightning's Sunday game at Budweiser Gardens.

Coming to Canada

- The new study by the Canadian Bureau for International Education says Canada's getting more popular.
- There was a 94 per cent increase in the number of international students here between 2001 and 2012, with more than 265,000 in Canada in 2012.
- More students are making Canada their first choice. Only 20 per cent of those surveyed in 2013 had applied to another country, compared to 45 per cent in 2012.
- Canada's top five sources for international students are China, India, Korea, Saudi Arabia and the U.S.

Shared arts space in search of innovators

The money's in place, and all it needs now is people through the door.

London's plans for a shared space to serve as a hub for everything from arts to heritage have reached a milestone.

The $6.5 million in funding has been secured, Pillar Nonprofit Network executive director Michelle Baldwin said Thursday, with commitments from banking institutions, credit unions and organizations like the Sisters of St. Joseph.

The downtown project is designed to bring together innovators in arts, heritage and multicultural projects to share space, ideas and resources, then come up with new ideas to take to the community.

"We have the business plan done," said Baldwin. "We're doing our due diligence on looking at some buildings in the downtown core. There are pieces of the puzzle that we're still pulling together."

The idea of an "innovation hub" has been five years in the planning, and already behind it are Pillar, the London Arts Council, Emerging Leaders and the London Heritage Council.

But the funding commitments are based on bringing in tenants, so the organizers are reaching out.

Involvement can be on different levels, said Andrea Halwa, executive director of the

Artistic bike posts solve cyclist parking problems

Ever been biking around London and couldn't find a place to lock up your ride?

Cycling enthusiasts are out to solve that — while throwing in a little extra special touch.

A coalition that includes city planners and even a Western University artist has created 50 decorative bike posts that will soon dot the landscape.

The metallic silver posts come from the fertile imagination of Western arts student Tegan Moore, who now has big fans in the cycling community thanks to her finished product.

"That's the coolest part," said Our Street London project coordinator Ryan Craven. "Part of the idea was we wanted to have a uniquely designed unit manufactured in London, and she did a great job."

While there may be steel trees of all colours lining downtown streets, Craven said a similar design could end up being more trouble than it's worth.

Our Street London project co-ordinator Ryan Craven.

"We're not painting them bright colours because that can be a maintenance issue with the paint chipping away," he said.

Craven and his team want people to fill out a survey at londonfuse.ca/blog/bike-post-partnership. From there, the group will decide where the posts should be installed.

"We're looking for input over the next month or so, and in the spring of 2014, we're going to be installing them," Craven said.

The $16,000 manufacturing and installation cost will be shared between those involved.

Craven's happy the city is on board because he says there's a lot more that can be done for pedal pushers in London.

"The overall cycling situation in London is that there isn't enough infrastructure," he said. "We need more lanes; we need more bike parking."

Inebriated grandma's licence suspended: Cops

A 51-year-old St. Thomas grandmother who had two children under eight years old in the back seat of her car was arrested Wednesday for allegedly driving with three times the legal limit of alcohol in her system.

St. Thomas police said they were in the area of Forest Park

School in response to ongoing traffic complaints when a concerned parent told cops she thought the accused had been drinking.

Police approached the vehicle and conducted a roadside-screening test, which the woman failed.

She was taken to the police station, where she registered almost three times the legal limit, police said. Family and Children Services were contacted for the children's safety. The woman was released from police custody Wednesday evening with a future court date and a 90-day licence suspension.

Provincial trend. Fewer Londoners are collecting unemployment benefits

The number of jobless people in London-St. Thomas receiving regular employment insurance fell by 6.7 per cent between August and September, says Statistics Canada.

Nationally, the dip was just 1.4 per cent. Compared to September 2012, the decrease locally is 11.3 per cent.

The total number of people receiving benefits in the London area dropped from 6,170 to 5,470 year over year.

Statistics Canada analyst Lahouaria Yssaad said every large metropolitan area in Ontario recorded decreases.

"So in that sense, London was in line with all the cities across the province," she said.

A quiet night at home with a mug of hot chocolate had the ideas flowing for one London entrepreneur.

Rayna Barnes had a great idea to keep sick kids content, and it's all the more remarkable because she's only 12 years old.

Here's the pitch: instead of asking sick little kids to hold things against their heads, Rayna's animal-themed headbands will do it for them.

There are three designs — two featuring a monkey and one with a panda. Each headband contains a pouch for a gel pack, cooling down fevered brows or warming up people with a chill.

Plus, Velcro strips allow them to adjust to small heads.

"And I thought, 'What if there was something better than a wash cloth that would stay on your head and help when it was too hot or too cold?'"

"We started making designs and got our friends and family to test it out until we got what we have now."

At first they made the headbands themselves, but now they have a company do it for them.

The first manufacturing run of 100 sold out quickly, and the new run of 150 is already halfway sold.

The outlook is still grim, but people are pulling together for 10-year-old Tyler Brooks-Szabo.

"His chances are still just 50-50," said family friend Bethany Joyce Wiggins. "He's suffered serious head trauma and a broken pelvis."

Tyler has been in critical condition in hospital since he was injured in a hit-and-run while riding his bike along a Wexford Avenue sidewalk.

Police have charged Toby Van Lieshout, 34, of Ingersoll, as the driver of the car involved in the crash.

Wiggins said Tyler hasn't fully regained consciousness or spoken since the collision.

She said Tyler's mom, Connie, has tried to remain strong and "is doing the best she can in this situation."

To help Tyler's family continue their bedside vigil and to raise money for the boy's trust fund, Wiggins is planning a Justice for Tyler open house from 1 to 3 p.m. on Nov. 30 at her residence at 52 Glenwood Ave.

Many medical marijuana users feeling outed by Health Canada

Panic mode. Mass mailing identifying recipients as pot smokers has some patients upset

TREVOR GREENWAY
Metro in Ottawa

Tens of thousands of medical marijuana patients across the country are receiving a mass mailing from Health Canada exposing them as medicinal cannabis users, and many are now in panic mode.

The letter, which Health Canada says was sent to 40,000 people, comes in a white envelope, and has a return address with the words "Marihuana Medical Access Program" written across the top, followed by the patient's name and address. Many say their privacy has been violated and fear their houses may be robbed and their home growing gardens targeted.

"I'm outright panicked," said Multiple Sclerosis patient Suzi Berardini, who also suffers from trigeminal neuralgia. She said the mailman who dropped the letter off "smirked" when he handed her the envelope. "It's terrifying. So many levels of terrifying."

Laurie MacEachern, who represents medical marijuana patients as director of the Medicinal Cannabis Patients' Alliance of Canada Inc., said she is "supremely" concerned about the information being released to the public.

"One patient said she got her mail and the delivery man said, 'I didn't know you smoked,'" said MacEachern.

MacEachern said previous letters did not have the word "marijuana" on it.

Ford's future up to T.O. voters, but he shouldn't get my job, says Harper

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is speaking out for the first time on Toronto Mayor Rob Ford — and keeping his tongue planted firmly in his cheek.

Harper jokes that he's heard Ford say publicly he wants to be prime minister, a notion Harper says he clearly can't support.

But when it comes to the Toronto mayor's future, Harper says that's for the voters of that city to decide.

"I've heard Mr. Ford's statements to the effect that he would like to become prime minister of Canada; obviously this is not something I'm in favour of," Harper said.

"In terms of his future in Toronto, that is for the residents of Toronto to decide."

Senators rattled by tale of PMO meddling

Rattled Conservative and Liberal senators say they're trying to come to terms with the RCMP's description of meddling by the Prime Minister's Office in the upper chamber's business.

The 80-page court filing by the Mounties became required reading around the Senate this week. Emails back and forth suggest Stephen Harper's staff and his top senators helped to manipulate a Senate committee and its report into former colleague Mike Duffy's contested living expenses. The group also tried to quash an independent audit commissioned by the Senate.

"I am a strong believer in the independence of the institution and I think it's something we're all going to have to reflect upon in terms of going forward and how that relationship (with elected officials) should be structured," Conservative Sen. Bob Runciman said Thursday.

Liberal senators are also reading the documents with interest, and considering if anything should be done on the floor of the Senate.

"I've read the documents. I find parts of them very disturbing indeed, but beyond that I don't really want to comment," said deputy Liberal Senate leader Joan Fraser.

"It's going to take a little while to work through all of this and figure out what the ultimate implications are."

Harper, who was in Lac-Mégantic, Que., on Thursday, did not directly answer a question about whether he'd been asked to approve the original plan.

"I've said many times that I told Mr. Duffy very clearly that I expected him to pay his own inappropriate expenses," Harper said. "That's what Mr. (Nigel) Wright said, that's what Mr. Duffy said publicly. When I learned the contrary in May, I took the necessary action."

In the Commons, Harper's parliamentary secretary Paul Calandra repeated the response that Harper was telling Wright in February he was "good to go" with Duffy repaying his expenses.

NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair mocked the response.

"In that case, there is really only one question: Since when does the prime minister of Canada have to approve a senator repaying his own expenses?" THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chris Montgomery

The Tory who stood his ground

In a scandal where even seasoned MPs and senators were persuaded to sing from the PMO songbook, a lone Conservative staff member stood his ground on ethics.

Chris Montgomery is the plucky Tory who said no when he was asked by some of the most powerful people in the country to help tinker with a Senate report on Sen. Mike Duffy's questionable housing expenses.

Montgomery, who has since joined the private sector, was the director of parliamentary affairs for former Conservative Senate Leader Marjory LeBreton for six years. His online LinkedIn profile says he was there to "exercise sound judgment in guaranteeing that agendas were advanced in accordance with minister's mandates."

But when the agenda of the PMO involved manipulating Senate committees, and shaping a Senate report, Montgomery balked.

"Chris simply does not believe in our goal of circling the wagons," Wright complained in an email about Montgomery.

"Because of this lack of buy in, it was impossible to discuss meaningfully the parliamentary strategy..."

Montgomery also told police that he ignored a request from Wright to keep tabs on Duffy. "He did not want to get involved in the audit process," RCMP Cpl. Greg Horton wrote in his court filing.

Eventually, a deal was struck with Duffy to have his expenses repaid. The Prime Minister's Office and key senators moved to strip a Senate report of paragraphs critical of Duffy. They held a meeting with Senate staff a day before the report was made public. Montgomery again said no.

Montgomery also appeared to try to remind Harper's office of the autonomy of Senate committees. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 50th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will be marked by solemn events in multiple U.S. cities on Friday.

In Dallas, where Kennedy was shot while riding through the city on Nov. 22, 1963, a ceremony will include brief remarks by the mayor and the tolling of church bells.

In Boston, the JFK Library and Museum will open an exhibit of never-before-displayed items from Kennedy's state funeral and host a musical tribute that will be closed to the public.

And in Washington, President Barack Obama will meet privately at the White House with leaders and volunteers from the Kennedy-established Peace Corps program.

About 5,000 tickets were issued for the ceremony in Dallas' Dealey Plaza, which is

Emergency Canadian Red Cross hospital is open in Philippines

A Canadian Red Cross emergency field hospital in the Philippines is open for business.

The facility is located in front of a damaged local hospital in the city of Ormoc, on the west coast of the island of Leyte.

The hospital was flooded by the typhoon and its roof was destroyed.

The Canadian facility is helping with surgery, medicine, maternal and child care and outpatient services.

Canadian Red Cross CEO Conrad Sauve says the hospital expects to handle 10 to 15 natural births and five or six Caesareans every day, as well as up to 300 outpatients.

"Our teams on the ground have been working around the clock to get the hospital going," said Sauve. "Now that this hospital is in place, we will be able to cover the health needs of a population of more than 100,000 people."

Knockout game. Teen's punches turn deadly in string of U.S. assaults

Police in New York, Washington and Jersey City are investigating whether recent random attacks on pedestrians are part of a violent game called "knockout," where the goal is to target unsuspecting pedestrians and knock them unconscious with one punch.

Authorities say the game has been around for years, and it's played mostly by teenage boys looking to impress their friends. At least two deaths have been linked to the game this year, and police have seen a recent spike in similar attacks.

In New York, a 78-year-old woman walking in her neighbourhood was punched in the head by a stranger and fell to the ground. In Washington, a 32-year-old woman was swarmed by teenagers on bikes, and one hit her in the face. In Jersey City, a 46-year-old man died after someone punched him and he struck his head on an iron fence.

University to accept digital money for tuition

Cyprus' biggest private university said Thursday it will start accepting the digital currency Bitcoin as an alternative way to pay tuition fees.

The country had been a hub for international bank-

The University of Nicosia said the move to accept Bitcoin was meant to help foreign students in countries where traditional banking transactions are either difficult or costly to pay.

Women freed from 30 years of captivity

Two suspects arrested, three victims rescued.

London police say domestic slavery possible motivation

Three women have been freed after spending 30 years held captive in a home in south London, England, including one woman believed to have spent her entire life in domestic slavery, police announced Thursday.

London's Metropolitan Police spoke about the rescues after two people — a man and a woman, both 67 — were arrested early Thursday on suspicion of forced labour and domestic servitude.

The arrests were part of a slavery investigation launched after one of the captives contacted a charity in October.

Kevin Hyland, of the Metropolitan Police's human trafficking unit, speaks to the media Thursday.
SKY TV/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those freed on Oct. 25 are a 69-year-old Malaysian woman, a 57-year-old Irish woman and a 30-year-old British woman, police said.

Police would not speculate on any possible motivation, name the suspects' nationalities or say if any of the suspects were a couple.

The revelations raised numerous questions — all still unanswered — about the women's ordeal.

The women — whose names have not been released — are now safe at an undisclosed location in Britain and have been working with severe trauma experts since their rescue, said Kevin Hyland, head of the Metropolitan Police's human trafficking unit.

Hyland said while the women had some "controlled freedom," police were still working to establish what sort of conditions they lived under for the past 30 years.

He said his unit, which deals with many cases of servitude and forced labour, had seen previous cases of people held for up to ten years.

"But we've never seen anything of this magnitude before," he said.

Temp Recalls the Zombie Walk

I think the AmQex protest got so much press because the zombies that the cops handcuffed and dragged away left behind a wicked trail of slime and body parts.

Andy Kimura, the firm's third partner, was looking at YouTube over my shoulder and said, "I must say, Shannon, bodily remains really look great online." Andy was still woozy from jetlag after being quarantined for bird flu at Beijing Airport.

"Mr. Kimura, shouldn't you be showing the Chinese folks around while they measure stuff?"

"Not me. I'm Japanese."

"Genetically maybe."

"But my name certainly is, and the Chinese aren't so hot on Japan."

I said, "Hey, check this out — Sarah from marketing got 15 seconds with the Channel 3 Roving Reporter." To be honest, I've no idea what Sarah said. All I remember is her trademarked casual hair flip as she smiled while behind her lay a left leg covered in red corn syrup and vinyl black flies.

"Poor Sarah," said Andy. "Today's her last day."

Oh God. "Seriously?"

"That's life, Shannon. As we speak our new Chinese owners are measuring the staff lunchroom with a laser level. We are not a company that is in need of a head of marketing."

"Oh Sarah, I barely knew ye. Does she know it yet?"

"After lunch."

"Life sucks."

It was weird having every single surface of the building measured by quiet, methodical people speaking a mystery language. What made it especially odd was how they didn't really seem to notice or interact with the people in the building. It was like they were taking measurements inside a photograph, not a real building. Two guys in the meeting room were assembling a 3D model of the building using data brought in by the measurers.

I found myself missing Mr. Shoeman terribly. I decided to phone him in Beijing, and seeing country code 86 on my desktop phone put me in a better mood. I hoped he hadn't forgotten our plans for the future.

"Hello, Mr. Xu?"

"Hi, hello, yes, whatever — whoever this is, I'm getting a reflexology right now and need to focus my qi energy."

"Mr. Shoeman, it's me, Shannon."

"Ah. Sweetest lily of decadent western imperialism."

"Shoeman, I miss you. When are you coming back?"

"Me so sorry — not understand."

I giggled: "You're still such a dick."

"Hang in there, sweetheart."

"What about our secret plan?"

"Our secret plan goes into operation within a few days."

"You promise?"

"I promise." I hung up the phone and turned around to find Andy Kimura and the two remaining Sarahs. "Secret plan?" said Andy. "So Dan wasn't just being paranoid."

Synopsis

Combatants and sweethearts Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) and Peeta Mellark (Josh Hutcherson) have returned victorious from the 74th Annual Hunger Games. While on a Victory Tour to Panem's various downtrodden districts, revolution is in the air. The people see Katniss as a symbol of freedom, which, of course, doesn't sit well with President Snow (Donald Sutherland), the country's autocratic leader. To quell the revolution he and his head gamesmaker (Philip Seymour Hoffman) devise the trickiest Hunger Games yet, the Quarter Quell that will pit former winners against one another in the battle to the death.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

The Hunger Games: Catching Fire is styled within an inch of its life, but it maintains a gritty edge. CONTRIBUTED

Two is better than one

Catching Fire. The followup to the Hunger Games is a step above the first instalment, with more visual and thematic grit

Richard: Mark, I'm glad I saw the first Hunger Games movie because I'm not sure if I would have a clue as to what was going on if I didn't have that background. I may have been taken in by the beautiful art direction, or Jennifer Lawrence's intense performance, but I don't think I would have been able to connect all the dots. Plot points become more obvious in the second hour, but for non-Hungerites it might be confusing. What did you think?

Mark: I don't think anyone who didn't see the first one would even be interested in seeing the second instalment. So the question becomes: how do they compare? And surprisingly, I kind of prefer the sequel. The issues of state control, of media manipulation, and of income disparity are sharper and less cartoonish here. But more important, the secondary characters are more interesting and better drawn. Some of the contestants are intriguing, like Jeffrey Wright's techno-nerd, and his partner Amanda Plummer, doing her nutso thing. I even liked Elizabeth Banks and Stanley Tucci this time around — the characters seemed more grounded in the story.

RC: I do think this is a better movie than the first instalment. It is set decorated and costumed to within an inch of its life, but nonetheless has a gritty edge. It doesn't feel like a budget big franchise movie and that's a good thing. Visually as well as thematically it has more edge than any of the recent Marvel movies. And it skirts around the thing that upset many people about the first movie — the idea of kids killing kids — by setting the action between former victors ranging in age from in their 20s to in their 70s.

MB: You know what else it skirts around? The killings themselves, many of which happen off-screen, to protect the delicate psyches of our tweener population. But that's OK; this isn't really a film about body count. The only thing that left me queasy was the cliffhanger ending, with a plot twist that will seem arbitrary until we catch the next instalment.

RC: The cliffhanger ending is a bit of a shock after the almost two-and-a-half hour running time, but I felt as though enough had happened to keep me interested for the next one.

MB: And I think the next one may show Woody Harrelson to be the trilogy's most valuable player.

Frozen thaws the battle of the sexes

Female perspective. Male and female co-directors ensured Disney film didn't tread into stereotypes

RICHARD CROUSE
scene@metronews.ca

The new animated film Frozen features something unique — dueling Disney princesses.

"I think what was really important for this movie was to have the female perspective," says co-director Chris Buck.

"We have two female leads and there are times that as a male director you can go to the stereotype of what a female character might do."

That's where co-director and writer Jennifer Lee came in. "Jen would always take it to a different place," he says. "She would say, 'Make her real. Make her believable.' So I think that really helped. It was a good balance."

Based on a Danish fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen, Frozen is the story of two royal sisters, Anna, a spirited adventurer (Kristen Bell) and Elsa, a queen (Idina Menzel) with the awesome power to create ice and snow. Sibling is pitted against sibling when Elsa plunges her kingdom into an endless winter and Anna must act to save her sister and the empire. "You want to make these movies to last forever but we have to bring ourselves to it," says Buck. "We have to bring today's sense of entertainment and character to our characters."

"We're huge Disney fans and I grew up with Disney," says Lee. "When you watch a Disney film you are constantly feeling it. It is a combination of comedy and drama but it is together in such a way that you feel you are in the world. That is something we both love more than anything because that, to me, is what makes them timeless and resonate. You feel the character and you feel the stakes. You relate to them. I think Disney does that better than anyone."

Buck says that one of the big challenges in making Frozen was creating a movie for not "just the Disney family but also for the general audience, for everyone of all ages."

"I feel more than anything, a responsibility not to necessarily the company but to the audience," says Buck. "To the audience who comes in expecting a Disney movie and giving them the best of that. What does that mean to them? It's humour and emotion and beauty and all of that. For me, that's the pressure."

"I was speaking to a live action director who does more movies in the PG-13 and R-rated realm and he said, 'What you guys do is the hardest thing in the world because you try and reach everyone.'"

Stars. Vince Vaughn, Chris Pratt, Cobie Smulders

Vince Vaughn stars in this almost shot-for-shot remake of the French Canadian film Starbuck as a man-child who learns commitment and responsibility after discovering his sperm bank donations unwittingly made him the father of 533 children, 142 of whom have filed a class action lawsuit to learn their biological father's real identity. Supporting actors Chris Pratt, Cobie Smulders and Bobby Moynihan are all solid, but it's Vaughn who carries the movie. He hands in a charming performance with all the rough edges buffed away in an unabashedly sweet movie. RICHARD CROUSE

DiCaprio opens wallet for tigers

Leonardo DiCaprio wants to help the tiger population of Nepal. His Leonardo DiCaprio Foundation has awarded $3 million in grants to the World Wildlife Fund (WWF) to work with the Nepal government on protecting the animals. In a statement Wednesday, the actor and activist said he's "hopeful" the money will help "exceed the goal" of doubling the tiger population that exists in Nepal now. The money will help build up anti-poaching patrols and protect and re-store areas for them to breed.

Arcade Fire. No shoes, no shirt, no concert ... unless that's your costume

Canadian rock band Arcade Fire is getting heat for instituting a dress code for its upcoming arena tour.

On the Ticketmaster pages hawking seats for the Montreal group's upcoming tour, a note at the top of the page reads: "Please wear formal at-

The demand is garnering some backlash, with online cultural magazine Slate writing that the move is "presumptuous" and "an attempt to reinforce the band's status as capital-A Artists."

Hello Mr. Bond, he's been expecting you

You only live twice. Screenwriter's decades-long legal battle kept famous James Bond super villain Ernst Blofeld in the dark, until now (maybe)

MATT PRIGGE

Metro World News in New York City

It's been 30 years since James Bond super villain Ernst Blofeld terrorized movie screens. Predictably, you can blame a lawsuit.

For 50 years a legal battle ensued with screenwriter Kevin McClory, who died in 2006. But word has come that his estate has settled with Bond studio MGM and production house Danjaq. This means — but does not ensure — that in the 24th Bond film, to be released in late 2015, Daniel Craig may get his own shot at fighting Blofeld.

Though he appeared in six of the movies (seven if you count the non-canonical Never Say Never Again), Blofeld — head of the mysterious and powerful criminal circuit SPECTRE — was only in three of Bond creator Ian Fleming's novels. The book that introduced him, Thunderball, was not an original but rather a novelization of a script Fleming had written with others in the 1950s, in a failed early attempt to bring Bond to the screen.

Fleming and McClory created Blofeld in tandem, and as early as 1961, when the book was published, McClory sued Fleming for not giving him proper credit.

The lawsuit was resolved out of court, and Blofeld — who changed physical appearances (and actors) but, at least on film, usually kept the tight-fitting grey suit and yen for cat-stroking — wormed his way into the Bond-iverse.

His first screen appearances were in From Russia With Love and Thunderball, in which he was tantalizingly obscured. His face was finally revealed, with a nasty-cool scar, in You Only Live Twice, where he was played by Donald Pleasance. He was not killed, as in the book, and appeared again, played by Telly Savalas, in On Her Majesty's Secret Service; by Charles Gray, now with hair, in Diamonds Are Forever; and finally, his face again obscured (and once more bald) in For Your Eyes Only, where Roger Moore's Bond drops him into a chimney stack via a helicopter. (He dies — presumably.)

Through the '60s and '70s, McClory tried to circumvent his settlement to launch his own Bond franchise, which would duel with the existing one over at Eon Productions.

It wasn't until the early '80s that McClory and conspirators were able to get one off the ground, but he was only legally allowed to do a version of Thunderball.

So, in 1983, the world got Never Say Never Again, a remake of Thunderball starring Sean Connery, even though he had previously sworn off the role of Bond. Connery, now 53 and with an even less convincing hairpiece than in the '60s, once again battled a villain named Largo (Klaus Maria Brandauer) while romancing a blond hottie (Kim Basinger). And Blofeld returned, played by no less than Max Von Sydow. Of course, none of the film franchise fixtures (the theme, the gun barrel opening, etc.) could be carried over. Thanks to McClory's legal battles, Never Say Never Again is not considered part of the Bond canon, and was not included in the complete Bond box set that came out last year.

That was the last the world saw of Blofeld, unless you count Austin Powers' Dr. Evil, who was made up like Pleasance's You Only Live Twice incarnation.

This new settlement may change that. Or maybe it won't. Perhaps we'll have to wait for another few films until the relaunched franchise gets to him. Or maybe he'll dominate the next film, to be directed by Skyfall helmsman Sam Mendes. Feel free to hold your breath.

Battle of the Bonds

Kevin McClory's remake of Thunderball, Never Say Never Again, was released the same year as the official Bond film, Octopussy.

- The result was a big fat anti-climax: both films did about the same business at the box office.

- Still, it wound up being the only independently produced Bond film by McClory.

- McClory tried in vain to make other 007 films, but was still only legally allowed to again remake Thunderball.

PAT HEALY

Metro World News in New York City

This is hilarious. Check out Will Smith trying really, really hard not to put his arm around Margot Robbie in this photo call for their new film Focus in Buenos Aires, Argentina on Wednesday.

It makes sense. After all, the two co-stars were the subject of intense media speculation last month after they reportedly had a steamy romp in a photo booth at a party. "Once they pulled the curtain back to take the pictures, they let their inhibitions run wild, laughing, hugging and nuzzling each other in the dark," a source told Star.

So now Smith, the professional he is, knows if any other forthcoming gossip about his marriage or his "nuzzling" come to light, media outlets will use any photo they can find of Robbie and him together. Smart man.

Chris Brown kicked out of anger management for throwing a rock

Chris Brown has been thrown out of his Malibu rehab facility after he "flew into a violent rage" and threw a rock through his mother's car window following a family therapy session, according to TMZ.

The troubled R&B star has now been sentenced to 90 days in a different live-in anger management facility. Brown, who was most recently arrested for a brawl outside a Washington, D.C., hotel, was at the first facility for two weeks before the incident.

Party's over for Aaron

Uh-oh. Aaron Carter joins Toni Braxton, Teresa Giudice, MC Hammer, Kim Basinger and other fallen stars who have filed for bankruptcy. In legal docs acquired by TMZ, the former teen star lists his assets as $8,232.16 US. Which isn't going to come close to his liabilities, which total $2,204,854, with $1,368,140 owed to the IRS. And this factoid may make you feel better about your paycheck: Aaron lists his average monthly income at $1,998.75. So, hey! You might not be able to ever retire, but neither will Aaron Carter.

Are Harry and Kendall a thing? Don't expect him to deny it

Harry Styles is prompting new dating rumours after being spotted taking Kendall Jenner to dinner in L.A. Wednesday night, according to Us Weekly. Styles drove them to dinner at Craig's restaurant in West Hollywood, Jenner seated beside him in his SUV.

While it's not clear if Styles is actually dating the 18-year-old, he has made his feelings on high-profile relationships known. "I don't want to be one of those people that complains about the rumours," he recently told the British edition of GQ magazine.

"I never like it when a celebrity goes on Twitter and says, 'This isn't true!' It is what it is. The only time it gets really annoying is that if you get into a relationship and you get into a place where you really like someone and then things are being written in the papers that affect them and how they see you. Then it can get annoying."

Dan's advice for celebs? Stop sharing

Daniel Radcliffe has some simple advice for celebrities who are tired of having their privacy invaded: Stop sharing so much. "I don't have Twitter and I don't have Facebook and I think that makes things a lot easier," he tells Sky News. "Because if you go on Twitter and tell everybody what you're doing moment to moment and then claim you want a private life, then no one is going to take that request seriously."

Garlic Cheddar Biscuits. This delicious side dish is made with Canadian cheese. Which one? The choice is all yours

For a twist, substitute drained chopped pickled jalapenos or chives for the green onion.

1. Preheat the oven to 450 F (230 C). Line a large baking sheet with parchment paper.

2. In a large bowl combine the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, sugar and salt. Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut in butter until crumbly. Stir in cheese and green onions. Slowly add the milk, stirring with a fork, until the batter reaches a soft dough consistency.

3. On a lightly floured surface, knead dough gently 3 to 4 times until it holds together. Roll out to 3/4-inch (2 cm) thickness. Cut into squares. Place at least 2 inches (5 cm) apart on prepared baking sheet.

4. Topping: In a small bowl, combine melted butter and garlic powder; brush biscuits with half of the mixture.

5. Bake 12 mins. or until starting to brown. Brush with remaining butter mix. Bake an additional 3 mins. or until golden brown. Best served warm.

Even with most wine aficionados plugging into the Internet for the bulk of their liquid knowledge, there's still a place in this world for some hard copy.

Just in time for Christmas, the newly released Canadian Wineries (Firefly Books, $29.95) by Tony Aspler, with photographs by Jean-François Bergeron, is the book Canadian wine fans have been waiting for.

Focusing on more than 60 wineries — from British Columbia's Mission Hill all the way to Nova Scotia's Jost Vineyards — it's a lovingly crafted collection of stories and images that will make even the most jaded sommelier excited to visit these vineyards and drink their wines.

B.C.'s Sandhill Estate is included in the collection and its 2011 Cabernet Merlot ($17.49 to $21.99) is available just about everywhere. Dark, rich and layered with varietal fruit, it's a mouthful of local juice that pairs perfectly with meatier, winter-inspired menus.

The engine driving our vibrant national wine culture is our own wines, and if you're looking for a great guide to the excitement, Canadian Wineries is it. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Getting a Tinder date not a swipe dream

Helpful tips. Focus on your profile pic, don't come on too strong. Use it as a launching pad to meet that special someone

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News

It's the dating app that'll have your on-screen lust life swiped into action. Here's our guide to meeting the person behind the profile pic.

Profile pictures –

Don't mis-sell yourself

Frankly, group shots are irritating. You're selling yourself, not your mates – so your first image should be a headshot and nothing too distorted and artsy. No abs shots, guys, this isn't for the cover of Men's Health. Remember: people are flicking through photos at a rate worthy of R.S.I. (repetitive strain injury) so make 'em stop with a flirty face or power pose – and yes, pouting does work girls as long as you've got the lips for it.

Bio – Peppy, not prosaic

On a site where the sole focus is on the superficial, the bio can seem kind of redundant. Keep it down to a few helpful hints about you – but don't expect the furious finger flicker to take any notice of it. Girls: if you're tall (over 5-foot-10), include your height, unless you're after a Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes situation. Lastly, any quirky facts (Burlesque dancer) or particular passions can be a great way to start a convo.

Openers – Don't come on too strong, bunny boiler

Unless you're a condemned man, don't profess your love over Tinder. Conversely, save the dirty talk for a hook-up site: "You absolute babe :) I would love to totally wreck you x". You're not talking to a sex-crazed avatar, so kick off with something that you might actually say to a real person, like "Hi, how are you? What did you get up to over the weekend?"

Seal the deal – Get that date down

OK, the Tinder texting is sparking and you wanna meet up with the person behind the profile pic. Ask for their number, and if they're a bit nervy, send yours first and make friends over Facebook. That way, the potential love interest can get an idea of your social life and decide whether they want to be part of your weekends in a torture dungeon.

First date – Play it cool

People have a tendency to over-think the first date scenario but when it comes to a

Tinder 101

- It's a dating app, not a sex app.

- It's free on a smartphone.

- The app connects to Facebook and accesses your friends, though it doesn't broadcast that you're on Tinder.

- Your 'About' section, if you have one, will also appear on Tinder.

- You can only choose profile pictures from your Facebook page.

- Swipe right to like and left to pass.

- Get a match (you've both swiped right on each other) and the Tinder icon turns blue. Now you can chat or, as the game says, "Keep Playing".

TINDER TALK

- Men, a.k.a. 'Tinmen'
- Girls, a.k.a. 'Tindettes'
- 'Blueing' – you've got a match blind date of sorts, it's best to keep it simple. Drinks and chat is a reliable option.

Begin a new holiday chapter

Most families have a Christmas tradition or two that they look forward to sharing together year after year.

Traditions draw us closer together and allow us to slow down and enjoy the season.

Reading Christmas short stories together is free, meaningful and gives a slight pause to each day of the hustle and bustle that comes with the holiday season.

Begin on Dec. 1 and read a story each night until Christmas. You may want to plan ahead by having each family member choose a favourite holiday story.

You can borrow some from your local library, download them or listen to audio stories.

Make story time special by lighting some candles, or gathering the family around the Christmas tree. Make some apple cider or hot chocolate and have a small treat like cookies or shortbread to go with your hot drink.

You will be surprised at how much your family will look forward to this quiet time with each other and you may even have some wonderful conversations during or after reading these moments together.

Here are some Christmas stories to get you started:

- The Gift, by R. Louis Carroll.
- The Story Of Babushka: A Christmas Folktale, by Ruth Robbins.
- 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, by Clement C. Moore.
- The Christmas Story, the Bible — Matthew, Chapters 1 and 2.

Don't let the eggnog derail your career path

Office holiday parties.

Be on your best behaviour when you gather with co-workers

Ah, the annual office holiday party. Perhaps people have been on their best behaviour at the parties you have attended, but things can go south quickly, especially if alcohol flows freely.

If that happens this year — if you want to keep your career on the fast track — it's wise to keep your inhibitions in check.

"Employers are responsible for the safety of their employees, even at an office party, and they have a legal obligation to take appropriate disciplinary action against anyone who goes overboard in terms of sexual harassment, insubordination or discrimination," said Susan Thompson-Graham,

It's wise to keep your inhibitions in check at the annual holiday party if you want to keep your career on the fast track. PRESSMASTER/SHUTTERSTOCK the head instructor of the advanced diploma program in human resource management at the Nova Scotia Community College in Halifax.

Here are Thompson-Graham's tips for how to not ruin your career at the party:

- Don't skip the shindig. You may not want to go, but it's one night of the whole year, and if you don't attend, you could be ostracized at work for a while.

- Drink responsibly. Let management set the pace for how much alcohol is consumed. If everyone overindulges, ensure that you also consume vast quantities of water and food. "You don't want to be the office hangover joke the next day," Thompson-Graham said. "And do I even need to say it? No illegal drugs."

- Dress appropriately. "It's not Halloween, so no sexy pirate, sexy nurse or sexy devil outfits," Thompson-Graham said.

- Keep romance at bay. Although many people do meet their significant other at work, don't make out on the dance floor under the glare of the disco ball. "Instead, make arrangements for a rendezvous after the party," Thompson-Graham said.

- Observe social media etiquette. That means no texting — you need to look like you want to be there. And no posting "memorable moments" from the party on Facebook or Instagram, especially if your company has a social media policy.

- Express your gratitude. Thank the host and organizers for their hard work. "I often hear managers say, 'I do this for my employees and don't get a single thank you.' Be remembered for being the one who took the time to do so," Thompson-Graham said.

Lightning have 500 reasons for improved play

London Lightning have 500 reasons why they have improved recently.

And they may have helped the Lightning to their fifth consecutive NBL win, a 114-91 decision over the Power on Thursday in Mississauga.

Garrett Williamson led the Lightning with 24 points and Marvin Phillips added 21.

But what about that 500 thing?

"We have this thing called the 500 club," six-foot-10 Maurice Bolden said. "And every day we see each other and if he (Williamson) called me out, like right now — for me doing an interview — I have to do 25 pushups every time he says that."

(When the interview was over, he indeed hit the floor and did the 25 pushups.)

Williamson, Bolden and assistant general manager De'Anthony Bowden comprise the club and the only rule is that they can only "call out" each other once a day. And when they reach 500 pushups, the competition ends.

"He (Williamson) can be getting out of bed and brushing his teeth and I'll say, 'Let me have those 25 pushups.' He'll have to stop what (he's) doing and give me 25 pushups."

"It's just competitive-ness, we want to get better, get stronger, so it will only help."

Amnesia ails Leafs in loss to Predators

NHL. Lessons from October trip to Tennessee largely forgotten in rematch

Randy Carlyle didn't think his Toronto Maple Leafs could take much from their October win over the Predators in Nashville.

It was so long ago it might as well have been ancient history. That was evident Thursday night when so much that went right for the Leafs last time around failed them in a 4-2 loss to the Predators at Air

On Thursday

Maple Leafs

Canada Centre.

After jumping out to a lead, the Leafs abandoned much of what made them 8-2-0 at home going in. Defence in their own zone was spotty, and that, coupled with penalties, proved to be their undoing.

Craig Smith scored twice for the Predators, while rookie defenceman Seth Jones and Matt Cullen each had a goal. That overshadowed Peter Holland's first goal with the Leafs since being acquired from the Anaheim Ducks.

Toronto goaltender Jonathan Bernier, who shut out the Predators last month and has dominated them during his NHL career, made 24 saves on 28 shots but didn't allow a soft goal until the third period when the game had all but slipped away. Nashville rookie Marek Mazanec made 24 saves for the victory.

Carlyle said Thursday morning that so much hockey had been played since the Leafs and Predators met Oct. 10. In the present, his focus was to "cure some of the ailments that have been present."

That didn't go so well. Again the Leafs were out-shot — 28-26 after starting the game up 11-5 — and they couldn't put together much sustained attack time or opportunistic offence after Holland scored 5:48 in with a perfect shot over Mazanec's left shoulder.

Nazem Kadri scored the other Leafs goal with under five minutes to play in the third period to make it 4-2.

Two shades of Grey unite on Sunday

Saskatchewan Roughriders fans celebrate winning the CFL West final over the Stampeders in Calgary on Nov. 17. Sunday's Grey Cup will mark only the third time Regina has hosted the event. LARRY MACDOUGAL/THE CANADIAN PRESS

dave.langford@metronews.ca

When it comes to professional football in this country, there really are only two shades of grey.

As in Grey Cup.

First, the segment of our population with the absolute love of the Canadian game at all levels. For them, the CFL is almost a way of life and these people dominate in three provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — and exist in various regional pockets across the rest of our country.

This group loves three-down football, all things Canadian, movement in the backfield and someone actually gaining points when they miss 30-yard field goals.

The second group is not as obvious, but every bit as strong in their beliefs about the way football should be played. They are NFL fans and they are all across the country, dominating in some provinces and no worse than 50 per cent of the football enthusiasts in

Red, white and Grey

The pro-CFL and pro-NFL camps co-exist on Grey Cup Sunday for obvious reasons — both love football, both love Canada and there is nothing more Canadian than the Grey Cup.

many others.

Four-down football is their cup of Red Rose tea and betting on the game is part of their persona. They like the fact the best athletes are playing their game and relish the absolute television and online saturation, allowing them many more entry points.

But there is one day when both sides unite and become one — a special Sunday each year in late November. The confluence of the two streams on Grey Cup Sunday is a beautiful thing.

And this year more than the rest.

That is because the two smallest markets — Hamilton, represented by the Ticats, and Regina, by the Roughriders — are facing each other for the first time since 1989. And the game is in Regina, only the third time the city has played host to the event.

The pro-CFL and pro-NFL camps co-exist on Grey Cup Sunday for obvious reasons — both love football, both love Canada and there is nothing more Canadian than the Grey Cup.

But a Grey Cup in Regina is not the Grey Cup in the Rogers Centre in Toronto or the Olympic Stadium in Montreal or BC Place in Vancouver.

It is far superior, something very special.

It is an outdoor spectacle played in Canada's version of the "frozen tundra" where the elements will be in play all day and the fans would not have it any other way.

No matter how many downs are in play.

Grey Cup

Frostbitten Ticats had 'great time' out in the snow

Several Tiger-Cats emerged from their first Grey Cup practice with frostbite from frigid Mosaic Stadium.

But Paul Osbaldiston, Hamilton's assistant special-teams and kicking coach, said the team still relished the championship game workout.

"I loved playing in the snow," the former longtime Hamilton kicker said Thursday at a media breakfast. "I saw it as something different and fun and a challenge. Our guys had a great time out there (Wednesday). We ended up with a couple of frostbite situations. But the guys didn't complain, they practised hard."

"I remember in Winnipeg in '98, it was even colder than this. You just get through it. The game makes it all worthwhile."

Osobaldiston said the frostbite was nothing serious "but it tells you how cold it is."

Wednesday's temperature was listed at -16 C but it felt like -28 C. It was even chillier Thursday morning at minus-21 C, which felt like minus-31.

Both teams were slated to hold closed practices Thursday at Mosaic Stadium. Saskatchewan practised indoors Wednesday in Moose Jaw, and Hamilton will take advantage of that option for Friday's practice.

The forecast is improved for game-day Sunday with a daytime high of zero, feeling like minus-five. Kickoff is 5:30 p.m. local time.

Tiger-Cats offensive lineman Peter Dyakowski lifts Sandro DeAngelis after the kicker made good on a field goal against the Lions in Vancouver in September 2010. # Massive football player who has the IQ to match

Who is Peter Dyakowski? Hamilton lineman hopes to be a Grey Cup champ when he appears on Jeopardy

Hamilton offensive lineman Peter Dyakowski has already been crowned Canada's Smartest Person. And now the six-foot-five 325-pounder with a Mensa IQ has earned an invitation to appear on Jeopardy.

But the thing he really wants to win is Sunday's Grey Cup.

"Once I get that under my belt, then I'm going to put myself through a good trivia boot camp," the 29-year-old Dyakowski said.

Dyakowski won CBC TV's Canada's Smartest

Person show in March 2012. Contestants went head-to-head in six categories of intelligence: musical, physical, social, logical, visual and linguistic.

So is Dyakowski, a seven-year CFL vet who attended LSU on a football scholarship, really Canada's smartest person?

"He doesn't act that smart," Ticat linebacker Frederic Plesius said with a laugh. "In the bus, he likes to scream, make some noises to piss everybody off on purpose."

Strengths and weaknesses

So does Peter Dyakowski have any weak areas in Jeopardy? Contemporary interior decorators, he offers. Female authors of the 1970s.

- "I'm hoping for some categories like CFL history," he said. "Tim Hortons' pastries and British Columbia geography."

"But he's a cool guy. He's a leader, he's a good guy and he's an example for the team."

Dyakowski, a native of Vancouver who now calls Hamilton home, took an online Jeopardy test in January. He was invited to a July audition in Toronto.

A couple of weeks ago, he got the call that he had made the cut and will appear on the show in April.

Financial stability

Future looks bright for Tiger-Cats

With a new stadium taking shape and a successful run to the CFL championship game, Hamilton owner Bob Young says the future looks good for the Ticats.

"With a new stadium, a new television contract, a great web presence that we're building on and, of course, a winning football team, the Tiger-Cats will be financially stable for the first time in 42 years — next year, going into the new stadium," Young said Thursday.

"Winning the Grey Cup won't hurt at all," he added with a smile.

Young, a native of Ancaster, Ont., rescued the Ticats from bankruptcy in 2003. He is quick to deflect credit for his role in the team, however.

"The joke I make is my role with the organization is to take credit for all the hard work that everyone else actually does," he said with a laugh. "This is all just evidence that all the hard work that we've put in for the last 10 years actually is paying off and is resulting in the level of excellence that you have to have to get to the Grey Cup."

Rob Bagg. Receiver has another shot at glory

For a moment, it looked like Rob Bagg's dream of winning the CFL's biggest prize was finally over.

In an Aug. 17 game against the Montreal Alouettes, the Saskatchewan Roughriders wide receiver went out on a blocking assignment and went down in a heap, clutching his left knee.

Bagg left the field in tears, seeming to signal the end of a CFL career that barely managed to get started.

But two days later video emerged of Bagg running the stairs at Mosaic Stadium, and not even two weeks after that he was back in the lineup for the Labour Day Classic, making one catch for seven yards as the Riders downed the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Bagg finished the 2013 regular season fifth on the Riders with 430 yards receiving, and will have the chance Sunday to help his team finish first when Saskatchewan hosts the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the 101st Grey Cup at Mosaic Stadium.

"Getting back on the field is one thing but, really, your main driving factor is you want to be able to tell your kids and grandkids that you were the best in the CFL one year," he said.

Bagg will be in uniform Sunday for his first championship game since 2009, when Saskatchewan lost to Montreal after a too-many-men penalty cost them the game with no time on the clock.

His first shot at redemption was derailed late in the 2010 season when he tore the ACL in his right knee, causing him to miss the Riders' playoff drive and loss in the Grey Cup rematch with Montreal.

Bagg missed all of 2011 after reinjuring the ligament prior to the next season's training camp and played only three games in 2012 before tearing up his other knee, which also required season-ending surgery. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Green gifts. Riders have perch all their own when it comes to merchandise

Long underwear in green, rubber ducks with tiny green football helmets painted on them and a foam helmet that looks like a watermelon.

There is apparently no end to the list of things bearing a Saskatchewan Roughriders logo, and football fans flocking to Regina for the 101st Grey Cup on Sunday can't wait to get their hands on the merchandise.

Riders vice-president of sales Steve Mazurak says Saskatchewan sells as much merchandise as all the other CFL teams combined.

The Riders have had more than $7 million in merchandise sales in each of the last four years, with sales in the 2010 centennial year reaching $10 million.

But Mazurak says it's too early to know if sales this year will pass that $10 million mark, adding that might depend on the outcome of the game Sunday.
